

OUR WHISKY SELECTIONS CONTAIN AN SI INDEX RATING (S, I).

This ranks the (S)mokiness and (I)ntensity on a scale from 1 to 9. A lower (S)mokiness rating means a more delicate, with little to no peat flavor, and moves up to discernable levels of peat from the malting process. The (I)ntensity rating goes from light, fresh flavors, to rich with characteristics often derived from the wood selection and aging.

SCOTLAND

HIGHLAND

Largest region geographically, produces warm and rounded whisky with spicy notes.

ISLAND

Rocky, windswept and stark, the island landscapes are harsher and more barren than other parts of Scotland, with wood giving way to peat as a fuel for malting the barley. The resulting smokiness is unmistakable with a peaty nose and flavor to match.

Highland Park 12yr (8,5)	19	Talisker 10yr (8,6)	24
Highland Park 18yr (8,7)	32	Talisker Storm (8,8)	26

Highland Park 40yr (8,9)	420
Scapa Skiren (2,4)	29

ISLAY

Malts of strength and purpose, earthy, smoky, and with the smell of the burning peat fires – the 'peat reek' – very much present in its most treasured representatives.

Ardbeg 10yr (9,4)	23	Lagavulin 16yr (9,6)	30
Ardbeg Uigeadail (9,8)	30	Laphroaig 10yr (9,4)	18
Bruichladdich Octomore (11,9)	46	Laphroaig Quarter Cask (9,5)	21

LOWLAND

The stills of the Lowlands are bigger than elsewhere in Scotland therefore results in a lighter spirit which often needs less time in the cask to reach maturity. The Lowland malts have the fresh, floral and cereal flavors and aromas.

WHISK(E)Y BASICS

- A single malt whisky is the malt whisky produced at just one distillery, without any blending with a product from elsewhere.
- Blended whisky is made from a combination of several grain and malt whiskies.
- The age of a single malt refers specifically to the period of time it spent maturing in its cask, not bottle.
- Bourbon is American whiskey that is at least 51% corn mash and aged in new American oak barrels. While it originates in Bourbon County Kentucky, it is made throughout the US.
- Irish whiskey is triple distilled, Scotch whisky is double distilled and American whiskey is single distilled.

CANADA

For drinkers new to whisky, these are some of the lightest and easiest whiskies. Commonly referred to as Rye, it is not necessarily the case. The classic method of production is to blend rye and perhaps other whiskeys, with relatively neutral spirit, creating a light and approachable whisky.

Crown Royal	12	Forty Creek Barrel Select	12
Crown Royal Reserve	19	Seagram's VO	12
Crown Royal Extra Rare	35

IRELAND

Irish whiskey allows more of the natural flavors of the barley to rise to the front than Scotch whisky. Because it is triple distilled in large pot stills, Irish whiskey also has a softer, more rounded flavor than its Scottish counterpart.

Bushmills	12	Red Breast 12yr	18
Bushmills Black Bush	14	Tullamore Dew	12
Green Spot	18	Tyrconnell	14
Jameson	12	Tyrconnell Sherry Cask 10yr	22
Knappogue Castle	17

JAPAN

Japanese whisky is produced much like Scotch. The warmer Japanese climate results in a faster aging process, similar to bourbon. While many Japanese distillers use several different grains, malted barley is the most common. The result is a delicate and smooth and yet very complex, especially in older drams.

Akashi, Ume Plum Whisky	14	Kikori	24
Suntory TOKI	15

USA

American whiskey often has a fuller, stronger and sweeter taste than its European counterparts. The most recognizable styles include Bourbon, which is at least 51% corn and aged in charred oak barrels for at least two years, and Tennessee which is filtered through sugar-maple charcoal. Rye whiskey is made from at least 51% rye and is slightly more powerful and bitter than Bourbon.

STRICTLY SPEAKING, THERE IS NOT A RULE ABOUT HOW WHISK(E)Y CAN BEST BE DRUNK.

However, using some tasting techniques can considerably enhance the pleasure of drinking a dram. Adding water to any single malt changes the composition of the spirit and unlocks more flavors and aromas.

Adding ice to a single malt can certainly make a refreshing drink. The coldness of the ice can sometimes impair your ability to fully appreciate the subtler qualities of a single malt. So, if you're nosing and tasting, ice might not be ideal.
