THE RITZ-CARLTON, SOUTH BEACH APPOINTS SPA DIRECTOR

Rizia Parker named director at The Ritz-Carlton Spa in newly renovated oceanfront resort

MIAMI, FL – October 16, 2019 –Rizia Parker has been named spa director at The Ritz-Carlton, South Beach, following a multi-year, top-to-bottom renovation. In this capacity, Parker will be responsible for overseeing the entire spa, including programs, services, facilities and staff. The Ritz-Carlton Spa, based on a mindfulness approach to wellness, will offer holistic treatments, many incorporating indigenous South Florida ingredients designed to promote rest, relaxation and rejuvenation.

Parker joins the property with tremendous knowledge of luxury spas and ample international experience. Most recently, she served as director of spa at the Kimpton Seafire Resort & Spa in the Cayman Islands, where she maximized revenues by initiating strategies and programs that encourage the upselling of services and retail. Previously, she held management roles at The Hilton Luxor Resort and Spa, The Ritz-Carlton, Cairo and Anatara Bazaruto Island Resort & Spa.

Hailing from South Africa, Parker was the spa manager and owner of Cape Town Hollow Spa, where she implemented new menu design, marketing strategy, treatments and concepts. In her spare time, Parker likes to relax while experimenting in the kitchen. She is looking forward to exploring Miami with her family.
